

The world has voted to eliminate the Morse Code requirement for access to the HF bands. To comply with International treaty requirements the US needs to drop the code requirement. Any decision to make the General or Extra written tests harder should be applied to all license holders when they renew their license. After all making the reason for making the test harder is to prove technical competence. Retesting of anyone that did not meet the new standards is necessary.

Randy Moore